this industry that are consistently bringing us new and fresh takes on a craft that is constantly evolving and growing. Dan Shure & Aaron McCarthy a.k.a. Stag Radio were also interviewing the heroes of this new wave of free tools, Keith McMillen (ex-Thrillhitter, Optimo, Foundry, Caveman), and Colin Newton (Waves Gold, Equinox, Chaos, John Goldhamer). They were talking about the freeware trend and its impact, and their philosophies about working as a creative team. It was a really nice conversation, with some great insights from both of them. Stag Radio is a really great podcast, that features the biggest names in the industry talking about music and the creative process in a casual, sincere manner.

I should probably tell you a little bit about me before I go any further...I've been working as an audio engineer in New Orleans for close to 15 years now, first as a freelance audio jockey for labels like Dendro and Fabric . Ive worked on a variety of projects, mostly as a record producer as well as a freelance producer for artists like James Freeman , Vacuumfu , Jason Jon Miller , and JKings . I also work in the Producer's Workshop as a contributing editor. Ive been involved in the audio industry for 10 years now, and been playing guitar since I was 13 years old. 5ec8ef588b
